Nebraska hotel undergoes complete remodel

The Columbus Ramada River's Edge Convention Center in eastern-central Nebraska is in the midst of a $5 million revival. Under new ownership, the property is renovating 20,000 square feet of meeting and event space as well as the exterior of the hotel. The bulk of the project has been completed, with a few minor projects wrapping up by mid-summer.

The Columbus Ramada previously completed a 140-guest room remodel. When finished, the convention center — nestled on the banks of the Loup River — will offer a 13,500-square-foot indoor courtyard with six adjacent meeting rooms and a separate 3,200-square-foot ballroom. The combined event space will accommodate between 750 to 1,000 people. Other amenities include catering services, wireless Internet, audiovisual equipment rental and on-site event coordinators. riversedgecolumbus.com
